Lead tests ordered by state

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — An extensive study to determine the level of lead exposure in area residents has been approved by the Illinois Department of Health.

Plans for the 18-month, $500,000 study were announced Wednesday by Dr. John R. Lumpkin, state health director.

The study will include the residents of approximately 4,000 Granite City and Madison homes located within a mile of the Taracorp lead waste pile at 15th and State streets.

The IDPH will hold a public hearing on the study at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 27, at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

The lead waste pile and its surrounding area, as well as some areas of Venice and Eagle Park, are part of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's $25 million Superfund lead contamination cleanup.

That cleanup calls for the removal of contaminated soil from approximately 1,000 yards. The removed soil would be placed on the existing pile, which then would be sealed over.

The IDPH's lead exposure study was added to the EPA's Record of Decision, the legal document that establishes the remedial cleanup, as a result of public comments made on the EPA's plan.

The first phase of the IDPH study, scheduled to begin in July, will involve contacting the residents about being part of the study. This will include the identification of a control group outside the contaminated area to be used in the study.

The second phase, scheduled to begin in late August, will include a detailed questionnaire, blood and urine sampling, and the sampling of soil, dust and air for lead levels in and around selected homes.

"The purpose of this study is to address the concerns of the area residents about their health and the health of their children," Lumpkin said.

"In addition, given the widespread occurrence of lead in the environment, understanding how and when it becomes a hazard is important to protect the health and welfare of Illinois citizens."

While he said he was pleased to hear about the IDPH study, Brad Bradley, the EPA's project manager for the Taracorp cleanup, said the results of the IDPH study will have no effect on the EPA's cleanup plan.

Bradley said the urine and blood tests "will only show the amount of lead exposure to residents within the last several months. They are not an indication of the long-term risks or effects."

The EPA will not be using the results of the IDPH soil and dust tests, either, Bradley said, but will be running its own soil tests starting in September.

Although Bradley said at one time that the EPA and IDPH had considered doing the tests together, he said they had decided "it just wouldn't work."

"They're interested in finding the ways lead gets into people, while we're looking for how much lead is there," Bradley said.

"They're looking at the surface, while we need deeper samples."

Bradley said letters requesting consent for testing, to be used by both the IDPH and the EPA, have been mailed to a number of residents in Madison and will be mailed to Granite City residents this week.

According to the IDPH, in children excess lead can cause learning and behavior problems plus, in some cases, mental retardation.

Although the IDPH said adults are less sensitive to problems from lead exposure, in older adults elevated lead levels can cause high blood pressure, kidney damage and reproductive difficulties.

As a preventive measure, the EPA suggests that parents provide children with a well-balanced diet that includes milk, cheese, spinach, liver and dark green leafy vegetables.

2 nabbed after guns are fired

VENICE — Shots fired into a street crowd, followed by a long police chase involving several jurisdictions, have resulted in charges against 19-year-olds from Cahokia and Centerville.

According to Venice police, Sean Flakes of Cahokia was charged with unlawful use of a weapon and failure to possess a firearms identification card. David McCall of Centerville was charged with reckless conduct, unlawful use of a weapon and failure to possess an F.O.I.D. card, following the Tuesday night incident.

Police from Venice, Madison, Granite City and Madison County were involved in the pursuit and apprehension. The chase ended in the 1400 block of Madison Avenue.

According to Madison Garrett, of Garrett's Cut Rate Liquors on Weaver Street, a red and white Chevrolet pickup truck containing six men pulled in front of the tavern, where he was standing with his niece at about 10:30 p.m.

Garrett said the occupants of the truck yelled at some (See SHOOTING, Page 5A)

Crew bulldozes protected birds; residents in outrage

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A bulldozing crew clearing way for a pipeline project in the Tank Town area wreaked havoc on a nesting area for federally-protected birds, prompting police and neighbors to put a halt to the work Wednesday.

White scars 25 feet above the ground showed where chain saws had cut away branches within inches of nests that had been filled with baby egrets and herons. Piles of brush on the ground showed remains of both nests and birds.

The state's largest nesting area for large waterfowl is located a short distance from Long Lake in a grove of trees on Lake Drive near Morrison Road.

The rookery is home to black crested night herons, great egrets, cattle egrets and blue herons. All the birds are on the federally protected list and the night heron is also on the Illinois state endangered species list.

This week, in order to be able to see the route of its natural gas pipeline from the air, the Mississippi River Transmission Corp., a division of Arkla Inc. based in St. Jacob, Ill., hired a crew of workers.

The crew, from the Asdiundh Tree Expert Co. in St. Louis, was asked to clear the corporation's 50-foot right-of-way through the grove.

Residents around the grove started objecting as soon as the tree-cutting crew arrived on Tuesday. "It made you want to cry," said Lance Hord.

"Maybe they had the legal right, but if they had to do it, why in the middle of nesting time?"

"These birds are only there four months of the year. Why couldn't they wait?"

Hord, Barbara Gray and many other local residents went to the grounds and began trying to save the baby birds.

But, Gray contended, the crew was merciless: "I took a video of them running over birds with their bulldozer," she said.

Hord said the crew's equipment could have put the workers within inches of the nests. He wanted the crew to at least lower the live birds down to him before the workers cut the trees.

"It would have taken two seconds," Hord said.

"The way the nests are, the crew could have just picked up the entire thing and lowered it to the ground."

Arnett appeal denied, long saga comes to end

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Possibly the final chapter on the Granite City highway sniper was closed Tuesday afternoon.

With it closed a sad chapter in the lives of Annette and Vince Scrums.

Nine months after he heard the oral arguments, the 5th District Court of Appeals in Mount Vernon denied Gene Arnett's appeal of his 1988 conviction in the murder of Todd Scrums.

Scrums, a college student from Granite City, was killed by a shotgun blast as he drove home, along Interstate 270, from a party in October 1987.

Annette Scrums, Todd's mother, said Assistant Madison County State's Attorney Robert Trone called her soon after he learned of the appeals court decision at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. Trone was the prosecutor at Arnett's trial in June 1988.

"He was really excited," she said. "He said the person who called him had not been able to read him the entire decision — it's apparently very long — but it was unanimous."

"It doesn't change anything. Todd is still dead. But it says that side of things to rest. We've completed that portion of our lives."

Shortly after he filed his appeal, Arnett told the Press-Record he had been advised not to file the appeal by his attorney because — if the appeal were won and a new trial granted — it was possible the prosecutor might ask for the death penalty.

"I told him I got nothing to lose," Arnett said. "I ain't going nowhere, anyway."

Since the Arnett trial, Annette and Vince Scrums have become active advocates of victim's rights in organizations such as Parents of Murdered Children.

Earlier this year, they helped coordinate the annual Victim's Rights March across Eads Bridge.

One of the Scrums' biggest supporters is Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine, who lauded them for turning a "terrible personal tragedy into terrific public service." Haine said that being reminded of the pain of victims makes the public aware of the necessity to harshly punish criminals.

Much of Arnett's appeal argued that pre-trial publicity in newspapers and on television concerning a rash of highway snippings had hurt Arnett's chance of getting a fair trial.

During his trial, Arnett was linked to two other sniping incidents, although he was never charged in those incidents.

Granite City Police Chief Don Knight, then a detective sergeant, was instrumental in breaking the Arnett case.

"I'm pleased to hear he lost his appeal," Knight said. "He's right where he belongs — behind bars."

As far as the pre-trial publicity, Knight said the public has a right to know about criminals and what they do.

"When someone shoots people on the highway, the public needs to know," Knight said. When Arnett beat the girl at Huck's to death (in Pontoon Beach), with a tire tool, when he shot Michael Snodgrass with a shotgun at the Clark station (on Nameoki Road) and left him for dead, there is no doubt the public needs to know about a person like that.

After his conviction in the Scrums case, Arnett pleaded guilty to the murder of Nancy Bennett, a clerk at the Huck's store, and the attempted murder of Snodgrass at the Clark gasoline station in Granite City.

He was sentenced to spend the rest of his natural life in prison.

Arrested for 'crack'

VENICE — Two Granite City men were arrested Monday in the 1100 block of Market Street and charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance.

According to police Sgt. Theo Adams, Henry W. Ross II, 20, of the 2000 block of Bryag Avenue and Charles E. Hutchinson, 28, of the 2200 block of State Street were pulled over on a traffic stop for a defective windshield at 2:20 p.m.

The officer allegedly found a small quantity of crack cocaine in a door of the vehicle where a panel had been removed.

In addition to the possession charge, Hutchinson was also charged with having a defective windshield and driving a car without proof of liability insurance.

The men were transported to the Madison County Jail on Wednesday. Bond was set at $5,000 each.

Beating by man is alleged

Katherine J. Miller, 36, of the 3400 block of Kirkpatrick Homes told officers Ronald L. Miller Jr., 29, of the same address struck her on the face, arms and body with his fists while she was holding two-year-old Ronald L. Miller III at 10 p.m. June 16. She alleged her husband also struck their son in the nose in the process, causing it to bleed.

Miller was charged with two counts of battery and bail was set at $104.

Strikes parked vehicles

Officers were dispatched to a home in the 1400 block of State Street at 5:15 p.m. June 15 in regard to an automobile accident. Chris Risinger, 25, of the State Street address said a 1983 Chevrolet pickup truck had struck her husband's 1984 Chevrolet pickup and an AMC Sprint while they were parked in front of the house.

Officers questioned the driver, Rickie L. Jennings, 33, of the 2800 block of Grand Avenue, who remained at the scene. Jennings was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and was released after posting $100 cash bail and his driver's license.

Madison audio speakers missing

MADISON — Two audio speakers, owned by the Madison Senior Citizens Club, are missing from the Madison Recreation Center.

Steve Barry of the club said the 30-inch-high speakers were at the recreation center April 11 but were missing April 18.

Madison Recreation Director Jim Broadway said the Madison Rotary held a ham and beans luncheon at the facility April 17. He has asked a number of members and none has any knowledge of the whereabouts of the speakers.

Broadway said there is no evidence of a burglary at the recreation center.

Barry said the speakers may have been taken by mistake by someone using the facility. He is offering a reward for the return of the audio equipment. Anyone who may know where the speakers are can call Barry at 452-4162.

Revocations

Quad City area residents whose driver's licenses have been revoked by the Secretary of State's Office for conviction of driving under the influence of alcohol include:

David L. Jackson, 47, of the 2700 block of Nameoki Drive, arrested Nov. 2, convicted May 22.

Kevin J. Njebur, 36, of Miami Court, arrested Nov. 11, convicted May 22.

A Congressional bill that would redefine wetlands probably will have no effect on the Doherty Slough area, where recent development has stirred controversy among neighbors. The bill is far from approved, however, and could end up as a compromise in another of several pending pieces of legislation, said Brian Lott, aide to U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville.

Madison County will see some minor judge-shuffling with the arrival of new Chief Circuit Judge Paul Riley. Riley, 49, of Glen Carbon was named as the new chief judge Thursday. He will assume those duties July 1.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says its plan for about 60 deep wells and pumping facilities is still on track, despite problems that are now becoming apparent. The wells and pumps would be designed to lower the unusually high underground water table in part of Metro East.

Addressing a large crowd following Granite City's first Flag Day parade on Saturday, nationally known speaker Rev. John L. Steer said America won the Persian Gulf War because it kept "politics" out of the planning. Many veterans and uniformed servicemen stood at attention as Steer spoke and sang the National Anthem at the Greater Granite City War Memorial.

It's possible the members of the Granite City High School Marching Warriors may have a Gator Bowl in their future. The School Board gave the high school band tentative approval to accept an invitation to play at halftime of the 1991 Gator Bowl to be held Sunday, Dec. 29, in Jacksonville, Fla. The band will have to raise the money for the trip, about $80,000.

The State Board of Elections, as expected, voted to approve subdividing of the Belleville Area College District, following Friday's dismissal of a lawsuit challenging the concept. A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of a new voting map for BAC was thrown out by Sangamon County Circuit Court Judge Richard Cadigan.

The new subdistricts could force four incumbents to battle each other for a single Belleville area seat to remain on the board. Board Chairman Larry Reineck and trustees Ted Farmer, Elizabeth Jenner and Janet McReynolds all live within a proposed subdistrict, one of seven that have been created.

Seventh Circuit Judge Cadigan said he dismissed the case "because basically their suit was too vague. It didn't really state a cause of action."

Air quality here and in region failing to achieve ideal level

Air in the Metro East area has improved in the past 10 years, but is still the worst in Illinois in most pollution categories, according to a state agency's report.

Levels of particulates, such as dust, ash and heavy metals, will continue to be monitored, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency's report said.

Alton had the second-highest levels of sulfur dioxide during 1990. East St. Louis' level was higher.

However, the levels found in both cities were below federal and state standards, Dave Kolaz, manager of air systems monitoring, said.

The standard for sulfur dioxide is 30 parts per million; Alton had an average of 11, while East St. Louis averaged 15.

The agency used dozens of air pollution monitoring devices in sites across the state to compare health hazards.

"Metro East is going to be a real focus for us," said Robert Hutton of the Illinois EPA's monitoring division.

Granite City's air had the highest content of ash/dust content in the state, while East St. Louis' air had the most cadmium, a heavy toxic metal.

Two ozone warnings were issued last year in Jerseyville, on June 27 and July 3. Ozone forms on hot days when air is mixed with humidity and auto exhaust.

Granite City had the highest annual average of suspended particles in the air and recorded levels of particulates nearly twice the recommended standard.

For years, the municipality has exceeded federal standards. Granite City also was the only place in Illinois where traces of the toxic metal beryllium were discovered.

Hutton contended that emissions from the Granite City Steel plant are the leading cause of the high particle readings.

Robert Maxwell, spokesman for the steel plant, said he had not read the report, but said the company is cooperating with the EPA to reduce emissions.

Although East St. Louis has few industries left, monitoring devices there show the city led the state in cadmium pollution.

East St. Louis also had the third-highest lead-level readings. — From the Alton Telegraph

Census changes still possible

Plans to draw up new legislative boundaries could be thrown out of kilter by a new census sample that would show an increase in Madison County's population. The county's official 1990 population would be slightly increased if the U.S. secretary of Commerce decides to make an "undercount" adjustment.

The earlier count of 249,238 for Madison County would be hiked to about 251,000, said census spokesman Peter Bontane.

One of the factors is the potential disruption to redistricting that has already been passed in some states or is expected to be acted on before the decision is made by a July 15 deadline.

Illinois lawmakers have a June 30 deadline to pass a legislative redistricting plan based on the 1990 census figures provided earlier. If the new figures are adopted by the Census Bureau after that, the plan could be tossed out by a court challenge.

Chicago would be the biggest winner through adjustments. Its 1990 tally would jump from 2,783,726 to about 2,857,000, meaning an increase in state and federal taxes distributed on a per capita basis. Springfield and Peoria would also get population boosts.

The Census Bureau has only released adjustments to cities and counties with populations of 100,000 or more. Adjustments for smaller cities and counties will not be made public until July 15.

The bureau conducted second interviews on a sample of 150,000 people across the country. The interviews were part of a lawsuit settlement prompted by major cities, including Chicago. They alleged the Census Bureau substantially undercounted minorities, especially in urban areas.

The adjustments were made in the original "actual head count" by using statistical formulas.

Illinois' population would be adjusted from 11,430,600 to 11,592,000 if the undercount survey is adopted.

County to alter districts

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Finishing touches on new Madison County districts will be made June 28 with County Board members discussing the changes before voting on them during a special meeting.

State law requires the county to have a redistricting plan by the end of June.

Alan Dunstan, D-Troy, chairman of the board's Legislative Committee, said the redistricting will reflect "pretty much what's already been done."

He said preliminary remapping of county-board districts in Granite City, Nameoki, Venice and Chouteau townships reflects a loss of one board position in the Quad City area.

Where that seat will be transferred is not yet known but it will likely be in the Edwardsville area, Dunstan said.

The committee approved the preliminary remapping last week.

Population figures from the 1990 census were put into precincts throughout the county, with the average number of residents in each district totaling 8,668. All Granite City-area districts fell below that number.

The figures were: District 16, represented by Morris Miles, D-Mitchell, 7,791; No. 19, Frank Laub, D-Granite City, 7,367; No. 20, Nelson Hagnauer, D-Granite City, 8,196; No. 21, Vasil Efremoff, D-Granite City, 7,998; No. 22, Herbert Milton, D-Granite City, 7,024; No. 23, Don Garrett, D-Madison, 7,850; No. 24, Frank Dutko, D-Madison, 7,272; and District 25, Donald Rea, D-Fronton Beach, 8,302.

Dunstan's District 2 had the largest population with 11,377.

"We're going to draw the lines as fairly as possible and let the cards lie where they may fall," he said. "It will be an interesting meeting."

Redistricting will take effect with the November 1992 election.

EPA wrong about tests

How important is the study of lead exposure that the Illinois Department of Public Health is getting ready to conduct? To the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, it apparently isn't important at all. Brad Bradley, the EPA's project manager for its planned $25 million-plus cleanup of the Tarracorp site and surrounding areas, said the results of the study will have no effect on EPA plans for this area.

Bradley said the EPA is not concerned with actual exposure to lead, but concerned with the potential risk of future exposure. To determine this potential risk, the EPA used a complex model to predict the blood lead levels in children exposed to soils contaminated with varying levels of lead. In its assessment of our area, the EPA added no site-specific data, but instead filled in the holes in its model with "model children," "model activities" and "model dietary habits." When the numbers were added up, everything indicated soil with more than 1,000 parts per million posed a threat.

But, although it disdained site-specific studies — such as a previous health department study of blood lead levels — the EPA was willing to make some site-specific speculations and set its cleanup threshold at 500 ppm.

According to Bradley, the EPA's model, that decision is scientifically based and final. The only thing the results of the IDPH study can possibly show, according to the EPA, is the current state of health of the residents.

In reality, however, the IDPH test results could be used to fill in the blanks in the very model the EPA uses to determine risk. We could replace the "model children" with children in Granite City, Madison, Venice and Eagle Park.

Two 1990 scientific studies point out the importance of putting real data into the EPA model. Both studies are acknowledged by the EPA, which calls the conclusions "preliminary."

One study, which attempted to match actual data with data predicted by the EPA model, discovered that the actual levels of lead contamination in soil around a lead smelter in Herculaneum, Mo., were more than three times higher than those predicted by the EPA model.

The other study decided that the reason for the difference found in the Herculaneum study, as well as other studies using the EPA model, was due to an overestimate of the amount of dirt and dust eaten by children.

So, to answer our question about the importance of the IDPH study, we must say it is very important.

Medical and scientific findings through the years have left no doubt about the danger of lead to small children.

At the very least, the EPA owes a reasonable account, based on real studies of real citizens, of the risks our children face.

Then, and only then, can we be assured the EPA will choose an appropriate cleanup plan that will remove that risk to our children, now and forever.

'Singer' Madonna's no lady

In her book, "Southern Ladies and Gentlemen," Florence King notes that, to a Southerner, some words need no definition. Ms. King advises that Southerners are born knowing that the definition of "trashy" is "trashy," and a "peck" means a peck, or a pound, a bushel or a peck and, in some cases, a truckload, of anything edible.

Personally, I'm convinced she's right, though I don't limit such inborn knowledge to Dixie. A lot of us Midwestern folk have always known what those words mean — and nobody spelled them out for us. A mess of, say, a couple of pounds, so Ed and I can pig out on peel-and-eats, a "nice mess" is when I boil up 5 or 10 pounds of the same. A "mess" of green beans and ham is when I shop the vegetable section of the grocery store; a "nice mess" is when the produce stands in Poag-Wanda open up and I go berserk at the sight of all that fresh greenery.

So it is, too, with "trashy." I know it when I see it. No need to define it. Thus, when on the recent evening news I saw Madonna, at the Cannes Film Fest, throw off her pink kimono and reveal what was described as her "warhead" bra, I knew immediately what I was looking at — "trashy" behavior.

Oh, sure, I know there are other applicable descriptions for America's favorite floozy — self-aggrandizing instantly comes to mind. After all, the appearance itself was a promotion for her new movie.

Self-promotion is probably what Madonna does best, but based only on the brief view on the TV news of the off-screen performance, I think she picked the wrong place for show-and-tell. Even if she undraped the bazooms, most Frenchmen would likely have yawned. This kind of performance is pretty ho-hum in a land which can boast of the Lido, the Folies Bergere, the Crazy Horse Saloon. Even here, in unworldly old Metro East, we have Dotti's Body Shop.

I'd hate to think that any female in my own family would consider adopting Madonna as an icon, but apparently many young ladies have. I can only ask "Why?" I find myself agreeing with, of all people, Michael Jackson when he described her as having no singing or dancing talent — and "not even being pretty."

And who should know about pretty better than Michael? There was a long-ago time, during my high school years, when my best friend, Mary, and I read a profile-type feature in Color magazine about Margie Hart, a star stripper in the world of burlesque who was known as "the poor man's Garbo." Margie, the article said, was pulling down $1,000 a week for three performances daily. Four big ones a month!

In the mid '30s, when the movie industry was in a lull, she was asked to appear in a film. After long discussions of necessary talents and physical attributes essential to success in her field, we dropped the whole idea. Not only did we both lack those essentials but, down deep, we knew it was a "trashy" way to make a living, no matter how tempting that kind of happy cabbage might be.

I wonder, though, about the young women who eagerly adopt Madonna as a role model. Do they not have that built-in radar which zooms in on "trashy"? Has anything or anyone ever provided them with criteria for class? Is the acquisition of oodles of the long green their only goal? Do they find exhibitionism laudable? I wish I knew.

Funny thing, though. Within a night or two of the news brief of Madonna at Cannes, I saw an equally short bit showing an elderly woman deplaining in Bangladesh. Frail and wrinkled, robbed and sandaled. Arriving in a tragic land to do what she's done before and done better than most — provide help for victims. And as surely as the word "trashy" has popped into my mind at the sight of Madonna in Cannes, the word "classy" was my first thought at the sight of Mother Teresa.

Sure, I know that most of us lack what it takes to make a Mother Teresa. But certainly I am not "trashy" — and Madonna. Carol Clarkin is a correspondent for the Journal Newspapers.

Many waste reduction efforts working

Our guest

The following column, the second of four, by Frank Boyne, District 8 member of the St. Clair County Board.

What is the difference between "waste disposal" and "waste management?"

An analysis becomes more rigorous, the distinction between disposal and management fades.

Material compounds or manufactured products are formed from fundamental elements, and matter can be broken down or decomposed through decay or combustion.

Whereas neither of these decomposition mechanisms actually destroys or eliminates material, the mechanics of decomposition significantly reduce the mass of the original material.

In solid waste management, this reduction in mass or volume is the measurement of disposal and it can only be achieved through landfilling (including composting) and combustion.

The other strategies of waste reduction and recycling, reduce the amount of material that must be disposed of by not creating or by reusing it.

Landfills have always had a bad reputation with the public for obvious reasons, but they have always been accepted, also for obvious reasons.

Waste-to-energy technologies, patterned on the European experience, rapidly developed in the United States in the 1970s as a means to alleviate the problem of diminishing landfill capacity.

However, beginning in 1985, volunteer environmental organizations attacked the waste-to-energy approach as a municipal solid waste disposal strategy that was outdated and posed an unacceptable health risk to the public.

Today, municipal waste combustion facilities, waste-to-energy and resource recovery facilities have a distorted reputation with the general public.

As a matter of fact, the situation is so bad that this proven and effective strategy for municipal solid waste disposal, which is the mainspring of solid waste management in Europe and Japan, has been categorically rejected by many U.S. urban communities, even after millions of public dollars were spent to develop it.

For these communities, the real alternative is not the hopes and dreams of waste reduction, recycling, or social change, but rather large remote landfills with rail access.

Perhaps the failing family farms in the nation's heartland will be converted to large landfills with rail lines to provide solid waste disposal for the urban coastal communities.

SITING AND NIMBY

Any discussion of the politics of garbage must include the NIMBY (not-in-my-backyard) phenomenon.

NIMBY is a political fact that affects the siting of all undesirable public facilities, including sewage treatment plants, power plants and prisons — and solid waste treatment or disposal facilities.

However, unlike the others in which at least some segment of the population sees a benefit or a need for the proposed facility, solid waste disposal facilities reflect no perceived benefit to the public.

This is largely due to the long-standing practice by municipal governments of providing semi-weekly residential curbside pickup. The trash has magically disappeared so long that it is difficult to suddenly get the public to address the technical, financial and environmental aspects and to become involved in solid waste management and disposal.

The public wants its garbage picked up as usual, and for the most part, accepts that the government has to build disposal facilities that must be paid for with local revenues, as long as they are "not in my back yard."

The siting issue is politically powerful because it impacts neighborhoods where political opposition is fairly easy to organize as long as the target is a common enemy such as City Hall.

But it is particularly powerful in the case of solid waste disposal facilities because it transforms the average citizen into an environmentalist who is suddenly concerned about air and water quality more than anything else.

This combination of neighborhood, City Hall target, and environmentalist who is suddenly concerned about air and water quality more than anything else, can undertake.

Because of NIMBY, the same guy who would slam the door in your face if you would ask him to support opposition to wood stoves, barbecue grills and vehicle exhaust — all of which pose a greater threat to his air quality than a modern waste combustion facility — now an environmentalist with grave concern about the air quality.

Next: Why combustion is being rejected.

The public wants its garbage picked up as usual, and for the

Didn't need this kind of change

To the editor:

As a person comes down Washington Avenue and a few other streets here in East Granite, you have to notice our lovely new trees all in bloom.

It's a pretty sight to see unless you come on Wednesday. Then you forget the pretty trees and look at all the trash piled up.

After the trucks come, you see bottles, dirty diapers, broken bottles and paper laying by your pretty trees. Oh, it's very pretty.

Then you walk to your back yard. You can't see your neighbors across the alley, since some of our aldermen and alderwomen have taken it upon themselves to change our trash pickup to the front.

Well, in our block the people say "no can't do." We don't cut the weeds in the alley. We don't clean up out there anymore, since we don't need it.

So, again, thank you for the trash in the streets and the weeds and trash trees hanging to the ground in our alleys. We hope someday they decide on some more changes and it happens in the newer homes. See how you like trash? You open your doors and looking at weeds higher than your head and trash all over. Just say to yourself, "Well, we needed a change."

On Washington Avenue, we didn't need this change.

Congress wanted spending money

To the editor:

By now I am sure you are aware that despite Congress' promise to use the new tax revenue to reduce the federal deficit, it did the exact opposite.

That's right, Congress enacted the second largest tax increase ever and rather than reduce the deficit they increased spending $11 billion (and that doesn't include the Gulf War costs) and pushed the FY 1991 deficit to an all-time record of $20 billion.

You're saying to yourself, "I remember hearing Congressional leaders promise that the new budget would mean a $50 billion spending reduction in the years ahead. How can they say that?"

Let me explain. Only in Congress can you promise $50 billion savings at the same time you increase actual spending by $11 billion.

Here's how it works:

When Congress talks about spending cuts, they are not talking about cutting actual spending, but reducing projected increases. If Congress just reduces the amount of projected increases they call that a spending cut — even though actual spending is still increasing.

Let me give you a simplified example. Let's suppose Congress today is spending $1 on a program and they've budgeted to spend $2 on the same program next year.

However, if they spend $1.75 next year, they will call that a spending cut of 25 cents, even though they actually increased spending by 75 cents.

When Congress promised to save $50 billion in the years ahead, this was not an actual cut of $50 billion; it was a reduction in their "pie-in-the-sky" budget for the future.

Even with their supposed $50 billion cut, actual spending will still skyrocket.

The promise of deficit reduction was nothing more than a myth. Congress just wanted more taxes for more spending. And they would promise any thing just to get more of our income.

Congress is bankrupting America. Because of Congress' non-stop deficit spending, the interest payments on the national debt exceed a whopping $256 billion annually.

These interest payments on the ballooning national debt are already more than all the individual income taxes paid by everyone who lives west of the Mississippi River.

We are rapidly approaching the day when we won't be able to make the interest payment on our debt.

I'm sure that you understand what happens if you can't make the interest payments on your debts.

I urge you to tell the American people the real story — that deficit spending is increasing, not decreasing as Congress promised.

And tell them that the deficit represents a very grave threat to our future.

Graduates dedicate book to the aborted

To the editor:

The graduating class of St. Agnes High School in St. Paul, Minn., had the following dedication in its 1991 yearbook, "The Path of Life."

"We can't forget.

"In 1973, a Supreme Court decision legalized abortion. Eighteen years later, the Class of 1991 prepares for commencement exercises.

As we take our first steps into a world of possibilities, we find it necessary to pause and consider the greatest gift we have received, the gift of life.

"In doing so, we are reminded of the members of our class who were never given the opportunity we too often take for granted. Opportunities to learn, grow, share, care, hope, love, laugh, cry, and live.

In short, the chance to live. We dedicate the 1991 Palm to our absent American classmates.

Home Pride

The latest honors in ownership program

Today, we feature the second batch of properties honored by the Press-Record and the Community Pride Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Winners reflect a wide range of homes, from those whose steady maintenance has been a long-standing symbol of the block, to those who have worked hard to convert older properties into respectable appearance.

Following is a synopsis of some of the letters of nomination that were included in the entries received by the chamber office. If you would like to be considered for the award or know of someone who should, contact or write the chamber at 1831 Delmar, Granite City Ill. 62040, 876-6400. Homeowners can nominate themselves if they so desire.

Regarding the property of Goldie Rozzyke and her daughter and son-in-law Alexis and Geoffrey Lux, 1538 Sixth St., Madison: "Structurally our home for the last 30 years has remained the same. Outside, however, many changes have taken place. (In the back) old trees, bushes and flower beds were removed to make way for a pool. Currently 75 rose bushes have been put in, bordering these are 35-40 mums bushes. To date at least 275 daylilies have been planted.

"Changes in the front began one year ago. Thirty-year-old bushes were removed to modernize the front. We decided to do all of work from hauling to planting ourselves."

"A lot of sweat, energy, time and patience has paid off. I believe a home or a yard should reflect one's lifestyle. It should be ever changing, progressive with color and style. It should possess a newness; a freshness that one does not tire of. I was raised to be 'proud' of my heritage and to be especially proud of my home, since it is here that all of life's most important memories and decisions occur."

—Alexis Rozzyke Lux

Regarding the property of Marti Kismar Henkhaus, 2321 Arnold, Granite City: "Her front lawn is landscaped beautifully and always kept up perfectly. The backyard is an exquisite design around the pool with an assortment of flowers."

Regarding the property of Connie and Jerry Grupus, 1302 Washington Ave., Madison: "There are many unique qualities of my parents' home, yet the most outstanding is their in-ground swimming pool. Sixteen years ago, my parents were the first to build an in-ground swimming pool, you can bet that the pride in our community was at an all-time high."

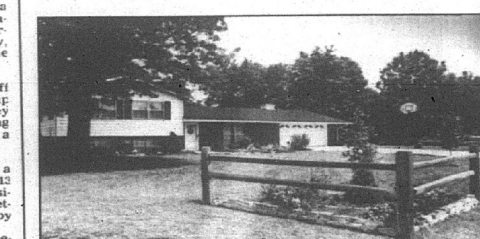

"The 20 x 44 pool has been landscaped and an attractive patio is fit for entertaining. Also, children love the backyard because an in-ground trampoline is located directly beside the pool."

"My parents have did much to keep their home beautiful. About five years ago, my parents added on a full-brick, two-car garage, sunroom, multi-media family room, full bath with Jacuzzi and completely remodeled the kitchen complete with a Corian countertop."

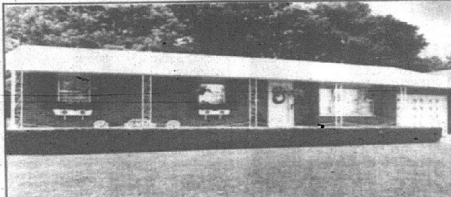

—Angela Grupus

Regarding the property of Craig Rydgi, 2437 Cleveland, Granite City: "The people at this house have transformed an ugly duck into a swan. They added a side room and put new siding on the house, the yard is also beautifully landscaped and has seasonal flowers. The people who live there are always working on it to make it look better. I pass by his house everyday on my way to work. The inside appears to be as nice as the outside. If you could have seen this house a few years ago, it's hard to believe it's the same house."

Matthew 9:37 ... "The harvest truly is plentiful, but the laborers are few."

It is a true saying that no matter what shape you are in there is always someone else who has it worse. Now rather than being comforted by this knowledge, we should be moved with compassion.

Here is an opportunity for you to become involved in God's work. You are doing better, you have it a little easier, you have something that you can give! Jesus said, "Pray the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

As you pray to the Lord, be sure to listen also. He may be speaking to you. You may be the answer to the very prayer you are praying! He may be sending you.

The harvest waits. Will you go?

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED

Attorney At Law

Sometimes a couple will obtain a divorce (dissolution of marriage) and the divorce decree (judgment of dissolution) will provide for specific visitation for the non-custodial parent. What happens if circumstances later change which affect the visitation rights? Can either parent take it upon himself to alter the terms of visitation?

As an example, in one recent case a father was granted visitation rights with his seven year old and nine year old daughters every other weekend. After the divorce, he began to drink heavily, and the mother feared for their safety when he drove them various places while intoxicated. The mother wanted to know whether she could refuse him his court-ordered visitation until he quit drinking.

In another case, a father was granted visitation every other weekend and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. For two years, both parents complied with the terms of the court order regarding visitation, but then the father began taking college classes at night on Tuesdays and Thursdays. He wanted to change his evening visitation to Mondays and Wednesdays and wondered whether he had the right to insist on this because of the change in his circumstances.

In cases like these, both parents have a duty to comply with the original court order until it is modified. Certainly the parents can agree to a change, but if an agreement cannot be reached, the parent seeking a change will have to return to court. Even if the parents agree to a change in visitation, it is the recommendation of this office that this agreement be reduced to writing and signed by a judge so that neither parent can later deny that both consented to this.

If either parent files a petition to modify visitation, the court will look at the change of circumstances and then make a decision based on the best interests of the child. It is important to emphasize, however, that neither parent should unilaterally deviate from the terms of the original divorce decree just because he or she thinks it is best. To change a visitation schedule on one's own without the court's approval can result in the parent being found in contempt of court.

Birds

Gray and some other neighbors managed to rescue five birds Tuesday night.

In the course of calling around to try to find a home for those birds, she contacted Adele Moore of Treehouse Wildlife Center Inc. and the Illinois Conservation Police.

Moore, along with Officers Kim Rhodes and Rick Schulte of the conservation police, arrived at the grove at about 9:45 a.m. Tuesday.

A fire-alarm during the night had effectively stopped the crew, but the officers ordered a work stoppage and placed the crew and a representative of the pipeline company under arrest.

They were released after being interviewed.

Moore went to assess the damage. A quick inspection turned up more than a dozen dead birds and one live chick. Moore decided a complete search was needed and started arranging to get more help.

On Wednesday afternoon, Hord said it looked like between 100 and 125 birds had been killed.

Moore's photographs and the state's video tape and the state's report will be turned over to federal authorities.

Even if the case goes to court, Moore said she doubts the punishment will be as severe as she and the conservation police would like. But, Moore said, "Now the pipeline company knows they can't just do this. Maybe it won't happen again."

The pipeline company could not be reached for comment. Others involved declined to comment.

Shooting

He said one of the occupants of the truck then handed a gun to another of the passengers who allegedly fired four rounds into a crowd of about 50 bystanders as the truck pulled away.

No injuries were reported.

According to Venice police Sgt. Tom Adams, the truck then was reported to have been seen traveling north on Illinois Route 3.

The pursuit followed Rock Road to Madison Avenue, where the truck was stopped in the 1400 block. The occupants of the truck exited the vehicle, were told to get on the ground in the street, and were handcuffed behind their backs.

Garrett, who was at the scene, identified two men as the perpetrators of the shooting.

An officer who had been giving chase, reported seeing a gun thrown from the truck. A Madison police officer found the weapon, a .357-caliber Magnum, on the sidewalk about 50 feet west of T.J.'s tavern, 1539 Madison Ave.

The officer reported that four rounds had been fired from the weapon and two live rounds remained. The gun was given to the Venice Police Department to hold as evidence.

Four of the occupants of the truck were released without being charged.

The two men charged were being held Wednesday afternoon in the Venice city jail without bond, pending transportation to the Madison County jail in Edwardsville, police said.

Only darkness can delay streaking Triplets

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Granite City Post 113 has finally met its match.

Father time seems to be the only thing capable of stopping the Triplets these days. Shooting for its eighth win in a row, Granite City ran out of daylight and had its game with Collinsville suspended by darkness Tuesday at Varsity Field.

The Triplets (8-1 in District 22 play) were leading 4-0 through 4 1/2 innings when the game was stopped. The contest will be completed as part of a two-night double-header at Collinsville (3-0, 9-5) on July 13, beginning at 7 p.m. Saturday's severe thunderstorm knocked out the light transformer at Varsity Field, which caused the inconvenience.

"We practiced pretty late (Monday) night, but I didn't want to turn on the lights," Granite City manager Ralph Burnett said. "I'm sorry I didn't, because we would have discovered the problem and we could have started this game at 6 p.m. But the game needs to be completed. Collinsville isn't out of this contest by any means. They're just a couple of base hits and big blast away from tying the score."

"It wouldn't be fair to call this an official game because we really didn't find out about the lights until both teams got to the field and started warming up." The brief interruption shouldn't have an effect on Granite City. The Triplets, who have allowed only one run in their last five games, aren't showing any signs of weakening on the mound. Starting pitcher Rich Schardan exemplified that against Post 365.

The righthander scattered two hits, struck out three and walked one.

"Schardan's always given us trouble in the past," Collinsville manager Tom Calza said. "He's not an overpowering pitcher, but he came isn't shy out there. He gave us our hitters. We've got a chance to salvage this game at our place later in the season, but I wish it was a little closer."

"Granite City doesn't show me too many weaknesses on the field and their pitching is outstanding. It's going to be tough for us to score four runs against them with only six outs at our disposal."

Ironically, these magnificent performances have also developed a rivalry on the staff.

"None of us wants to be a cocky attitude on our part. It's just the aggressive nature of our players."

"That's why we're always trying to outdo the other guys on the staff. There's a lot of personal pride at stake every time one of us takes the mound."

That attitude is primarily responsible for Granite City's fast start.

"This is by far the deepest pitching staff I've ever been on," Schardan said. "There's not one weak link in the rotation. All of our pitchers have the ability to stop the opposition. It's not a cocky attitude on our part. It's just the aggressive nature of our players."

"These guys just love to play the game," Burnett said. "Of all the teams I've had, and this is not to belittle any of them, these guys are hungry to better themselves. On off days, these guys are always pushing me to practice. They take the field for three or four hours and then they want to talk baseball after practice is over. That's why our impressive showing is a tribute to their work ethic.

"These guys aren't going to be outworked by anybody. The opposition must come to beat them. They're not going to give anything away."

Meanwhile, relief ace Ryan Reeves has enjoyed the easy life.

"Ralph thought using me in short relief would benefit the team," Reeves said. "But with all of the complete games we've had, the bullpen hasn't really been needed. I'll be ready, however, if and when the time comes."

"Not using our bullpen doesn't worry me one bit," Burnett said. "We've got some capable arms on our staff. These guys are ready to take the ball when I call them out to the mound."

Burnett also isn't concerned about peaking too soon.

"We're still not at our full peak," he said. "We should get there in the next three weeks. Brian Harshbarger (who belted a two-run homer in the fourth inning on Tuesday) still isn't hitting up to his potential. Once that guy gets going, he's going to be the best player in the district. His abilities at the plate alone can carry our entire team."

"But we're going along pretty well right now. That's why the quick start doesn't give me any fears of us slowing down later in the season. We're playing at an even keel. That steadiness will benefit us down the stretch."

NOTES: Tonight's game with Edwardsville will start at 6 p.m. The Triplets will take ghost infield beginning at 5:15 p.m. Burnett also encourages all of the fans attending the game to wear something red.

Zeile has understanding wife

Julianne Zeile stands by her man.

When her husband, Cardinals third baseman Todd Zeile, has a bad day at the office, she understands perhaps better than other players' wives.

The former Julianne McNamara knows the high and lows of being an athlete, especially one with golden potential who carries the burden of high expectations. An ex-gymnast, she has been interested in competitive sports since the World Series.

Julianne Zeile is a former Olympic gold medalist gymnast. She might have been a two-time medalist, but the U.S. team boycotted the 1980 games in the Soviet Union. She lost even when the Soviets boycotted the '84 games in Los Angeles.

Performing at home, she took an individual gold and silver and a team silver.

Because of that, she understands the trials her husband went through last year and the triumphs he's experiencing this season. And while she appreciates a good test, she prefers the triumphs.

"It's so nice to hear that happy tone back in his voice," says Julianne, 25. "I think anyone could see he was down last year."

A rookie, Todd Zeile was supposed to be "the next Johnny Bench," Julianne says. "He would have had to have an MVP season to live up to that."

But like all the Cardinals, Zeile had a shaky season. And by the time the game's so-called greatest active manager had deactivated and the Cardinals had finished in last place for the first time in more than a thousand full moons, Zeile's confidence was lost somewhere between home plate and the hot corner.

Julianne helped him find it.

"Being a former athlete, if anything I can be more objective and help put things into perspective," she says. "You go through your ups and downs. That's part of it."

Todd Zeile doesn't show much emotion. "He's the most even-keeled person I've ever met," his wife says. "Todd does pretty good leaving baseball on the field."

When Zeile's career was jolted by the Cardinals moving him to third base from catcher, he accepted it. And now he's easing that burden of high expectations by exceeding them.

"When you're an athlete, you have to realize that good and bad things are going to happen," Julianne says. "You have to keep things in balance."

Sounds like life in general. The Zeiles' life together began when they met in a folklore class in

Jack Farmer

1985 at UCLA. They were married in 1989 and today they live in Chesterfield happily.

"It's a lot more fun, a lot brighter than last year," says Julianne who occasionally works as a network analyst for gymnastic events. She is reported to be in line for one of NBC-TV's analyst jobs during the 1992 Summer Olympics in Barcelona, Spain.

While Zeile is having a wonderful year overall, the best contrasting story to measure his improvement is his production at the plate with runners in scoring position: through early last week he was 18 for 55 (.327). Last year, Zeile batted an unreliable .162 (38 for 232) with runners in scoring position.

"All the rookie stuff is behind me, all the focus is behind me, nobody is expecting us to finish in first place and nobody's expecting me to carry the team," Zeile says. "I came in with just a totally different feeling."

Ah, the mental part of the game: it's so key. Julianne, who grew up going to Oakland A's games with her father Kevin McNamara in California's Bay Area, knows it well.

"Going from Triple A to the major leagues, it's like jumping into international (gymnastics) competition — the Olympics," she says. "It's a fine line, and most of that is mental. When you get there, it's a matter of executing."

Like last season, Zeile's performance is a reflection of the team. Through last week he was hitting .301 and tied for second on the club with 25 RBI. In his first pro season at the hot corner, he was leading National League third-basemen last week, having made only three errors for a .978 fielding average. He is executing.

"An off year makes the good

Boxing fan' has weird night out

Lemme tell you about Herman. He's 28, tall, string-bean strong, arms down to there, eyes that menace. Herman, who's from the Queen City—that's Cincinnati for those who only audited Municipal Royalty 101—is a boxer. Not a bad one either. 3-0 in a year of pro fighting. He's good enough to hook an invite and a $200 paycheck as part of the boxing main event in a scheduled eight-bout boxing/kickboxing to-do in the Grand Ballroom of the Clarion Hotel.

That is, Herman is not a bad boxer at the start of the night. The Herman I run into late in the night is different.

Different? Do you consider prone different?

The eyes that menace now are rolled back so far the only thing Herman is seeing is the insides of his shoulder blades. The monster paws are folded across his chest. The man looks not so much like he could use a doctor—which, by the way, he could—but like he needs a rosary stuffed in his hands.

So what do I say? "You OK, Herman?"

Dumb question. Really dumb question.

Herman is not OK.

This is a weird night.

Herman would tell you that. If he were up to it. Which he isn't.

Mike Stocker would tell you that, too. But Stocker, who's sharing a dressing room with Herman tonight, is busy bleeding.

Stocker, who's from St. Louis, is far, far better shape than Herman. For one thing, he's standing under his own power. He's also coherent and, except for the fact he's just spent nearly half an hour bleeding due to various whacks, punches and kicks to the nose, apparently is capable of going out and mixing it up for another few rounds.

Dennis Barnidge

Stocker is just back from the night's kickboxing main event, the North American cruiser-weight title match with champ Neil Singleton of Michigan City, Ind.

The next time Stocker appears, still in his kickboxing get-up, he's crossing the Clarion lobby with a pretty blond woman, presumably on his way to have that schnoz X-rayed.

This is the damndest thing I've ever seen. And that's not just because at the moment I turn to watch Stocker head out of the Clarion a couple young punks go flailing away at each other and tumble across the lobby smack into a concrete pillar.

It's different because, well, just because.

I must lead a sheltered life.

I mention this to a man standing next to me early on in the four-hour Arch Productions program. You can bet he gets a good laugh out of that.

This is not the smoke and mirrors of "Wrestling at the Chase." This is not the hovering officials and quick whistles of Golden Gloves. This is mayhem. Real, live, let's go out in the parking lot and settle this like rutting animals mayhem.

I wouldn't have guessed there was a market for that, but there were posters and fliers and announcements all over the place touting upcoming mayhem. There's a kickboxing fest at the High Ridge Elks Club this weekend. There's something called shootboxing—don't even ask—on July 5 and again Sept. 1 in Branson. And Arch Productions returns with another kickboxing/boxing card on Aug. 5.

This is the sort of stuff that makes strong men—even strong men with ponytails, who seem to make up about one-third of tonight's crowd—cover their eyes. But no one covers their eyes.

Instead, the crowd—there's about 1,000 here and I doubt any of them are regular readers of Town and Country—comes alive when things get nasty.

The place has a perceptible pulse when Herman has his lights turned out by a last-minute replacement, IBC Continental Americas champ Arthur Jimmerson. Jimmerson was plucked from the crowd—I swear this is so—when Herman's original opponent, a kickboxer named Steve Cook, got hurt at work and had to pull out at the last minute.

It was a happy coincidence judging from the crowd reaction, though more than a little restlessness set in during the 10 to 12 minutes Herman lay motionless on the canvas.

If Jimmerson-Herman whets the appetite for nastiness, Stocker-Singleton sates it.

Elbows are flying one way. Punches another way. Kicks another way still. Blood and sweat are flying everywhere. I'm stunned. Not quite as stunned as Herman, but pretty damned stunned.

Briefly

Completes worker orientation

Michelle M. Lombardi of Granite City recently completed the new employee orientation program for cartographers at the Defense Mapping Agency Aerospace Center.

Lombardi received a B.S. in mathematics from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in 1989.

Located in St. Louis, the Defense Mapping Agency Aerospace Center provides worldwide mapping support for the Department of Defense. Its aerospace products are used in flights of all military aircraft, training in aircraft simulators, missile guidance systems and manned space missions.

Weathers attends conference

William G. Weathers of Granite City recently attended the Prudential's regional business conference in Scottsdale, Ariz. Weathers is an agent in the company's Alton district office at 235 East Center Drive.

Resident gets marketing job

Robert Albrecht, president of Corporate Strategies Inc., a marketing resource and communications group located in the West Port area, announced the addition of Tracy L. Buchanan as marketing consultant.

Buchanan, a resident of Granite City, brings extensive sales and promotional expertise, including international experience, to her new position and has received honors for her sales achievements. In a previous position, she held distinction as top district sales person.

She holds a bachelor of arts from Eastern Illinois University. Buchanan responsibilities will include new business development, concentrating in the metropolitan area, and assisting in the conception and development of marketing planning and implementation for the firm's clients.

Trimmer gets award

Ronald G. Trimmer of Granite City recently received the Special Act Award from the Defense Mapping Agency.

The award was presented during the eighteenth annual DMA Awards Day ceremony hosted by the Defense Mapping Agency Aerospace Center.

This award, was given to Trimmer for helping develop a methodology that will save the agency an anticipated $35 million the first year it is implemented.

Basler, BAC develop language program

Belleville Area College and Basler Electric Co. of Highland, have developed and implemented a unique program of Spanish language instruction for industrial communication.

Basler executives contacted the Business Assistance Center of BAC in the fall of 1990, seeking a way to enhance communications between its Highland-based employees and those at its three production facilities in Mexico.

The program is industry- and site-specific. That is, the language instruction focuses on the specific processes and technical operations carried out by Basler's foreign employees.

Realistic workplace scenarios are emphasized, along with sensitivity to the socio-cultural and cultural characteristics of the workforce.

According to Alexis Indenbaum, program coordinator and instructor, the instruction allows for differences in the regional dialects where the three Mexican plants are located. Indenbaum spent many hours interviewing Basler executives and employees, discussing management's goals to determine the format of the Spanish class. She also, literally, wrote the book — a 140-page text customized to address Basler's Mexican operations.

A native of Venezuela, Indenbaum uses a hands-on participation approach in teaching the class.

"Each Monday from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., the class is divided into two segments," she explained. "During the first half, we work on vocabulary, review information and practice new work."

"During the second half of the class, there is usually a guest who has lived and worked in Mexico and presents a different perspective on the country and its culture."

Nineteen executives and contact personnel completed 30 hours of class work when the program ended in May.

"We are really pleased with the progress of the class," said Charles Wright, director of training for Basler.

"The members of the class have shown great enthusiasm and some have already had an opportunity to use vocabulary and information from the class."

Basler Electric, which employs more than 1,500 workers, has five facilities in the United States, plus three in Mexico, and recently opened a distribution center in France.

The company was founded in the 1930s by Carl H. Basler, who began operations in his father's garage.

During World War II, Basler developed electrical products that were essential to the war effort, and officially launched Basler Electric. Today, the company annually produces more than 7 million products, including printed circuit boards, power transformers, voltage regulators, solid-state relays for utilities, power supplies and electronic equipment.

According to Wright, Basler Electric is preparing to expand its worldwide marketing efforts. The company, he said, has experienced strong sales growth since the inauguration of its Mexican production operations, and this has created expanded employment opportunities in its domestic operations.

Most paid weekly in Illinois

More than half (54 percent) of the Illinois firms surveyed pay their office staff weekly; one third (31 percent) pay them every two weeks; and 15 percent pay twice per month, according to the Management Association of Illinois personnel practices survey.

At two-thirds (65 percent) of the firms, new employees must wait 90 days before they are eligible for pay increases. After a probationary period, most (89.2 percent) firms base pay raises on a performance appraisal.

The personnel practices survey represents responses from nearly 400 Illinois firms. This survey indicates trends in personnel policies and benefits.

Results are divided into six major categories: pay practices; working conditions; health and welfare benefits; recruitment, training and development; employee/community relations; and labor relations.

CROSS STOP: The Tri-City Chapter of the American Red Cross recently moved to 3728 Nameoki Road. The non-profit agency offers disaster relief, emergency assistance to military personnel and their families, blood drives and health and safety courses. The former site on Delmar suffered minor damage when a fire devastated a neighboring building in downtown, but the main reason for the move was the need to expand, said chapter manager Ron Streller. From left in front: Mary Jessop, Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce ambassador; Mayor Von Dee Cruise; Streller; and Linda Manis, ambassador; second row, Janet Mills, ambassador and Red Cross board member; Pat Gonwa, chamber ambassador; and R.C. Bush, chamber executive vice president; and at top, Jim Snelson, Red Cross, safety service manager.
